

Flavia Julia Helena [a] (/ ' h ? l ? n ? /; Ancient Greek: ?leni, Helén?; c. AD 246/248-330), also known as Helena of Constantinople and in Christianity as Saint Helena, [b] was an Augusta of the Roman Empire and mother of Emperor Constantine the Great. She was born in the lower classes [2] traditionally in the city of Drepanon, Bithynia, in Asia Minor, which was renamed ...

Waugh's story of St. Helena is simultaneously a biography of half-legendary Saint, known for her discovery of the Cross of Golgotha, who thus proved the truthfulness of the founding Christian narrative, and an ironic modern historical novel on the decline of the Roman Empire.

Your acclaimed novel, The Veil of Promise (El Velo de Promesa), is a moving, fictional narration of the life of St. Helena, who was the empress-consort of Constantius Chlorus (250-306 CE) and the mother of Constantine I (272-337 CE). Constantine was, of course, the first Christian Roman emperor and the founder of imperial Constantinople (modern ...

The novel Helena (1950) is analyzed as Evelyn Waugh's profound statement on his most significant problems: the possibility to resolve the crises of the 20th-century consciousness through Christianity and on the nature of power. Cradle Anglo-Catholics were always suspicious of Waugh, seeing him as an errant Catholic; the paper uses the work of Waugh's biographers ...

The renowned novelist De Wohl, with his usual crisp language and descriptive narrative, as well as irony and humor, presents the colorful and tumultuous times of the early Christian era in this story of intrigue, romance and power politics revolving around Helena, the devoted and saintly mother of Constantine, the first Christian emperor. This historical novel tells the story of the ...

Evelyn Waugh, author of the internationally acclaimed bestseller Brideshead Revisited and one of the greatest writers of the twentieth century, considered Helena to be perhaps his finest novel. Based on the life of St. Helena, mother of the Emperor Constantine and finder of the true cross, this spiritual adventure brings to life the political ...

Although Evelyn Waugh was a Catholic, Helena (1950), his novel about St. Helen, mother of Constantine the Great, the first Christian emperor, appears at first an anomaly in his career. Waugh wrote a half dozen of the funniest books in English, in a clear, forceful style that is as distinct as that of any twentieth-century British writer. . . .
